

I am concern by the amount of power one company can have by owning so many stations during a critical political time. Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

I believe the FCC has an obligation to protect public airwaves. By current media consolidation, our freedom of speech is at risk by companies focused on their profit and their politics.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
